INVICTUS SPIRIT

A MESSAGE FROM RETIRED SERGEANT
STEVE DANIEL

It is difficult to say which moment changed my life more. The moment at the end of my 102nd free-fall jump as a parachute instructor with the Royal Canadian Regiment, when I landed on my tailbone, fracturing a vertebra, which left me partially paralyzed from the waist down. Or, the moment on Mount Washington on Vancouver Island when I discovered sit-skiing for the first time, and began my new future.

From that first sit-ski, which became a symbolic moment for me, I graduated to competitive sport through adaptive rowing. Two short years after my injury, I found myself once again representing my country at the 2008 Paralympic Games in Beijing, this time in a new uniform. The Maple Leaf has never been so beautiful to me.

The power of adaptive sport was beside me through my transformation from a seasoned soldier, to a Paralympian, to a practicing medical doctor and now, to an Invictus Games competitor. None of it was easy, but all of it was possible.

Like many of my teammates, I joined the Canadian Armed Forces for adventure. It was that same longing that led me to participate in the Invictus Games. But what I found was far more powerful. The Invictus Games offered me a new purpose, a new drive and a sense of belonging. With all my life's changes, the opportunity to reconnect and spend time with my brothers- and sisters-in-arms strengthened my connection to my past and enabled me to move forward.

The Invictus Games in Toronto will have the power to change the lives of all 550 competitors, and the lives of their friends and families who have been invited to be a part of this healing experience. All of us have said goodbye to the lives we once had before becoming ill, wounded or injured. Many of us have yet to greet our new potentials...until now.

Don't miss your chance to witness the best of the human spirit. Join us in the stands and experience for yourself the power of Invictus.

On behalf of all the competitors, thank you for your support and for being a part of our journey. We all look forward to seeing you in the stands in September!

— Retired Sergeant Steve Daniel,
member of the 2016 and 2017 Invictus Games Team Canada

OPENING AND CLOSING CEREMONIES

The Opening and Closing Ceremonies will celebrate and embrace the Invictus Games mission: to transform empathy into empowerment and unleash the Invictus spirit within each of us.

OPENING CEREMONY (OC)

The Opening Ceremony of the Invictus Games Toronto 2017 on September 23, 2017, will be a spectacular, live two-hour event designed to welcome and honour competitors and their families from 17 competing nations.

The show will feature hundreds of cast members, including men and women from the Canadian Armed Forces, in stunning performances, masterfully combined with the pageantry of elements such as the Parade of Nations and the raising of the official flag. Celebrities, world dignitaries, headline music stars and special guests will all come together as we pay tribute to dramatic Invictus stories and celebrate the brave service members of the 2017 Invictus Games.

Join thousands of friends, family and fans and welcome 550 competitors at the Opening Ceremony, held at the Air Canada Centre in Toronto.

CLOSING CEREMONY (CC)

On September 30, 2017, the Invictus Games Toronto 2017 Closing Ceremony will feature an astounding array of international headline music artists, joining together to celebrate the achievements and drive of the Invictus Games competitors. A celebration of spirit, the Closing Ceremony will feature powerhouse musical performances, world dignitaries and stories of inspiration as the Games are passed to Sydney, Australia, host of the 2018 Invictus Games.

ARCHERY

Archers barely move, but the precision and skill of the competitors and the exacting standards of the competition make archery one of the Games' most exciting sports. Competitors may shoot while standing, seated in a wheelchair or on a stool. The recurve and compound bow archers aim at 40-centimetre targets set 18 metres from the shooting line.

Novice recurve archers (those who have been participating in archery for less than a year) shoot at 60-centimetre targets.

Archery features individual events for men and women and a mixed team event. Both recurve and compound bows have distinctive, futuristic designs and materials that add to the memorable aesthetics of the sport.

There is no entrance fee to Fort York National Historical Site (during the Invictus Games Archery Competition on September 27, 28 and 29, 2017), courtesy of the City of Toronto.

CYCLING

Road cycling brings competitors and spectators to the beautiful Toronto Island Parks for two separate events over two days.

During the time trial, a cyclist enters the race every 60 seconds. They race against the clock to complete the 11-kilometre course as quickly as possible. A gruelling combination of speed and endurance, time trials routinely see cyclists average speeds in excess of 40 km/hour over the duration of the race.

The criterium is a mass start race, with competitors racing head to head against the other racers in their category. Riders race for a set length of time, completing multiple laps of a 1.7-kilometre course. The criterium race is strategic, with riders working both with and against each other to try and save as much energy as possible for an eventual sprint finish on the bell lap. The speed at which the competitors ride is entirely dependent on the decision of the group.

Competitors, depending on their adaptive requirements and categories, compete on either a road bike, handcycle, recumbent or tandem bike.

GOLF

The 2017 Invictus Games will see the introduction of golf to the Games' sport program for the first time. The golf competition includes golfers of all abilities competing together.

Each competitor's established playing handicap and scoring is factored into a Net Stableford scoring system. Men and women compete separately in individual single 18-hole rounds of golf at the world-class St. George's Golf and Country Club in suburban Etobicoke, on the west side of Toronto.

INDOOR ROWING

The historic roots of the Invictus Games indoor rowing competition adds to its popularity and intensity year after year. To train inexperienced oarsmen, 4th century Athenian admiral Chabrias built wooden rowing frames on shore, where beginners could learn technique and timing before they went on-board ship.

The indoor rowing competition features two races: the one-minute sprint and the four-minute endurance, where men and women compete separately. These events use a series of adaptive hand-grips and modified seats to best suit the competitor's abilities as they compete in six categories.

JAGUAR LAND ROVER DRIVING CHALLENGE

The Jaguar Land Rover Driving Challenge features one team from each nation, with both competitors given the opportunity to drive and navigate. Their skills will be tested on two separate courses, a Jaguar course that allows competitors to showcase both their speed and precision, highlighting the agility and handling of the Jaguar vehicles, while the Land Rover course features a number of different obstacles, highlighting the vehicles' capability. Points are awarded for the ability to complete the courses quickly, but more importantly, cleanly, as fouls deduct points from the team's total score. The Jaguar Land Rover Driving Challenge provides the first medals of the Invictus Games Toronto 2017.

POWERLIFTING

Powerlifting is one of the most compelling sports at any Games. The simple struggle as competitors try to lift the most weight is one of the purest measures of a competitor's ability, so powerlifting often creates tremendous theatre. Originally contested by competitors with spinal cord injuries, powerlifting at the Invictus Games is open to competitors with other disabilities, all competing from the bench-press position.

The lifter brings the weighted bar down to his or her chest, then presses it upwards in an attempt to hold the bar steady with straight arms. Each competitor will get three lifts total. They must choose which weight they want to attempt to lift. Once they choose a weight for their first lift, they can keep the weight the same or increase it for their final two lifts. Men and women compete separately and in different weight classes.

SITTING VOLLEYBALL

When William Morgan invented volleyball in 1895, his plan was to create a less strenuous alternative to basketball. He would likely be surprised by the athleticism of the competitors in sitting volleyball (which originated in 1956 as a more active form of the German game of sitzball) at the Invictus Games because this sport is certainly no leisurely pursuit. Playing on a smaller court than able-bodied volleyball and with a lower net, sitting volleyball competitors are positioned closer together on the floor, putting a premium on lightning-fast reflexes. This also makes for a significantly faster-paced game. These competitors display all the skills in digging, passing, setting, hitting and blocking that are required of competition at the highest level.

As the teams of six work to keep the ball from landing on their court while trying to force the ball onto their opponent's side of the court, they must keep at least one buttock in contact with the floor at all times.

Swimming is always a signature event at any multi-sport Games and the Invictus Games are no exception. Competitors use three well-known techniques: breaststroke, backstroke and freestyle. Each technique will have of a 50 metre race, while freestyle will also include a 100 metre race. Additionally, the mixed relay will compete in a 4 x 50 metre freestyle format event.

Swimmers compete in a variety of categories with different adaptations to ability. For example, swimmers can begin races in the water, or either sitting or standing on the starting platform. Swimmers with visual impairments race in blackened goggles to level the field and ensure competitive fairness.

WHEELCHAIR BASKETBALL

Wheelchair basketball owes its roots to the desire of World War II veterans with spinal cord injuries to become active again. The first documented game was played on November 25, 1946, by a group of veterans in the United States. Wheelchair basketball has been part of the Paralympic Games program since 1960 and is sure to be one of the most popular sports of the Invictus Games with fierce rivalry pushing each country to succeed.

The number of players on the court, the ball and the height of the hoop are all familiar to basketball fans, as is the scoring, with competitors attempting free throws for one point, regular field goals for two- and three-point shots from beyond the painted arc. Wheelchair basketball competitors also move the ball around the court by passing or dribbling, except that holding the ball for more than two pushes on the chair's wheels—instead of steps—results in a travelling violation.

WHEELCHAIR RUGBY

If you haven't had the opportunity to watch a sport originally called "murderball," you should snap up tickets! Invented in Winnipeg, Manitoba, nearly four decades ago as an alternative to wheelchair basketball for athletes with reduced hand and arm function, wheelchair rugby is one of the can't-miss events of the Games. Competitors work with teammates to score goals by advancing the ball to the opponent's goal line. They carry, pass or dribble the ball—a volleyball—in what is always a fast-paced and often physical contest.

With a limited amount of time to mount an attack, and because contact between wheelchairs is permitted, collisions between wheelchairs are strategic and often fierce. Wheelchair rugby is a sport of speed and power that offers the same kind of intense spectator experience that makes hockey and football so popular.

WHEELCHAIR TENNIS

The wheelchair tennis court, net, scoring and equipment look perfectly familiar to tennis fans. The only difference here is that competitors are in wheelchairs and the ball can bounce twice instead of once before a return.

With a history dating back to 1976, wheelchair tennis is a long-standing and popular wheelchair sport. Open to all competitors, wheelchair tennis provides all of the tension and excitement of a sport where an entire match can turn on a single point or a single shot, and where the margin between victory and defeat can be the sliver of daylight that turns a perfectly struck winner into a ball called out.

CREATING AN ACCESSIBLE GAMES

The Invictus Games Toronto 2017 Organizing Committee is committed to creating an accessible Games experience for everyone, with accessible venues and services for our competitors, spectators and workforce. Our goal is to ensure that everyone can share the same great Games experience and enjoy all that the Invictus Games will offer!

Spectators attending the Games can expect a variety of accessible services. Accessible services at all venues will include:

- Accessible public transportation options (visit TTC's website for more information)
- Accessible entrances and exits
- Accessible amenities such as washrooms, concession stands and merchandise kiosks
- Accessible seating and adjacent companion seating
- Accessible medical services
- Service animal relief areas
- And more.

Information on accessible services offered at each venue will be available on our website in summer 2017.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

How will ticketing work?

The Invictus Games Toronto 2017 will take place over eight competition days and will include an Opening and Closing Ceremony. Each day will be broken down by sport, discipline and smaller sessions. Sessions are defined as an individual or multiple sporting events at one specific venue for a set time frame. One ticket needs to be purchased for each session in order to access admittance to the venue. Please refer to the sport descriptions above to determine the selected sessions where medals will be awarded.

How and when can I purchase tickets?

To purchase tickets, please visit invictusgames2017.com/tickets beginning June 15, 2017 at 10:00 am. You will be asked to create an account for the ticket service provider that each venue uses. There will also be the option to purchase tickets, for venues that require a ticket, on the day of each session. Tickets will be subject to availability and will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis. The terms and conditions for each venue can be found at the point of sale.

Will I be able to purchase tickets at the venue?

Yes, but subject to availability. All venues that require a ticket for entry (including the Ceremonies at the Air Canada Centre) will have a ticket box office, which will open one hour before the start of each session. Only major credit cards (Visa, MasterCard, American Express), and cash will be accepted for payment. Keep an eye on invictusgames2017.com/tickets for availability.

Are there any free events?

Yes. Five of the 12 sports will be free of charge, no ticket is required. While these sports will be free to view, there may be separate admission charges to gain access to a venue (e.g. Toronto Island Ferry).

Please review the individual sport's page for additional information.

What does "price category" mean?

Price categories are an indication of seat locations inside venues. Tickets in price category 1 will provide seating that is generally better in quality than tickets in price category 4 at the same session and venue. Lower price categories will still provide a great Games experience.

To what does a ticket provide me access?

A ticket will provide you with access to a ceremony or a sport session. Sessions are defined as an individual or multiple-sport event at one specific venue and time, whereby one ticket per person is sold to cover attendance.

Will I be able to select my seats at time of purchase?

You will be able to select your seat(s) for the Opening and Closing Ceremonies only. All other sporting sessions will be general admission seating. If you are arriving as a group, we recommend that you allow plenty of time before the session starts so that you can find seats together.

Will any discount tickets be available?

Yes. We will be offering the following age-qualifying groups a 20% discount for ceremonies and sport tickets:

- Children under the age of 17 years as of Sept. 23, 2017.
- Anyone 65 years of age or over as of Sept. 23, 2017.

In addition to the age-qualifying ticket discount for public sales, we will also offer a 20% discount for members of the military personnel, veterans and their family. We reserve the right to limit the number of discounted tickets available at any time. Full-priced ticket service fees will apply.

You may be required to provide photo ID when purchasing tickets in person and when entering the venue. If you are unable to prove eligibility for the discount ticket, you may be refused entry or ejected from the venue.

Will there be a limit on the number of tickets I can order per session?

Yes, but only for the Opening and Closing Ceremonies. To give as many people as possible the chance to obtain tickets, and in order to allow for the fairest and most equitable means of distribution of sessions when demand for tickets exceeds supply, ticket limits will be applied. Group sales will be available for all sporting sessions and details on purchasing group tickets will be available at the point of sale.

Will all tickets be available for sale as of the on-sale day of June 15, 2017?

The Organizing Committee will ensure that the majority of tickets will be available on the first day of sale. However, as with any multi-sport/multi-venue events, not all tickets will be available due to planning restrictions. This means tickets will potentially be released up until the beginning of each session.

Are there any additional fees on top of the stated ticket prices?

Yes. All tickets will be subject to service fees and this will be stated during the purchase process. If you decide to have the tickets delivered in a way that will incur a charge (mail), the fees will be added to your final charge. Print-at-home tickets will be available for all sessions, free of charge. Discounted tickets will be subject to the same service fees as those of a full-price ticket.

How do I purchase accessible seating?

All Invictus Games venues will have accessible seating, which will be available for purchase through invictusgames2017.com/tickets. If you require a companion seat, you will be able purchase this at the same time as your accessible seat. If you are a large group please approach our event staff on venue who will try to accommodate your needs. All accessible seating is subject to availability.

If I live outside of Canada, will I be able to purchase tickets?

Yes. You will be able to purchase tickets if you live outside of Canada using any major credit card. You will be subject to the standard services fees and any additional fees charged by your service provider.

Can tickets be returned or exchanged?

Ticket(s) refund or exchange will only be applicable if the event is cancelled, rescheduled or relocated and you cannot or do not wish to attend the rescheduled or relocated event.

Do I need to purchase a ticket for my baby?

Infants under 2 years of age as of September 23, 2017, will be granted free entry to both ceremonies and sports sessions provided they enter with, and sit on the lap of, an adult parent or guardian who possesses a valid ticket. Infants cannot occupy a seat of their own and only one infant may enter with one adult.

Can I resell my tickets?

Ticket resale is prohibited. Please read the Ticket Terms and Conditions carefully to understand your rights and obligation. These can be found at the point of sale of the tickets.

What does "general admission seating" mean?

If you are buying tickets for a session that has general admission tickets available, these seating areas (including accessible seating) will be operated on a first-come, first-served basis. When you arrive at the venue, you will be directed to available seats by our event staff. If you are a group wishing to sit together, you are advised to allow plenty of time as we cannot guarantee that your group will be able to sit together. If you require assistance on venue, please approach our event services staff who will be able to assist you.

What payment methods can I use?

We accept all major credit cards (Visa, MasterCard and American Express). We are not able to accept payment by debit card, cheque or PayPal.

FORT YORK NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Built in 1793 as a military garrison, Fort York served as a key defensive site during major hostilities between America and pre-Confederation Canada, including the War of 1812.

The grounds of the fort and the land around it encompass part of an 1813 battlefield as well as two military cemeteries. Today, Fort York serves as a historic site and during the Invictus Games will, fittingly, be the site of the archery competition.
